

Photosynthesis is the process by which green plants convert sunlight, water, and carbon dioxide into glucose.

Mitochondria are the powerhouse of the cell and produce ATP through cellular respiration. The electron tra